

What are Danille Turissini's priorities?

Education and the Next Generation.

Danille Turissini is focused on improving our public schools. A mother of three and now grandmother of three, Danille wants to help the next generation grow and succeed. She believes the legislature must do more to fully fund our schools, while also increasing accountability and focusing on results to get more value out of every dollar.

Improving Our Public Schools

Fully Funding Our Schools.

It's been four years since the State Supreme Court ruled that the current funding structure for education is unconstitutional. While the legislature has made some progress, the state is now in contempt and being fined $100,000 per day. We need to do more to resolve inequities in the system and to ensure our children receive the education they need to compete in today's global economy.

Increasing Accountability.

The entire purpose of our education system is to help children grow and learn. We need to hold those in charge responsible for how our children get educated. We need to do more to ensure that no child falls through the cracks. I'll support reforms to keep the focus on the core mission of public education: our kids.

Focusing on Results

While much of the discussion on education is around funding, it should be about how can those funds improve student learning. We should invest where it makes the greatest impact. I support more funding for early education when our kids learn the most and on vocational programs to prepare students for life after public education.
